It is no exaggeration to say that without insurance an industrial economy could not function at all.

Peter F. Drucker

Scientific and cultural endeavor of a country necessitates using the latest and newest writings of today's advanced and scientific world. This is only possible through studying and researching national and international texts. For the latter alternative, interpreting international research and writings faces the language barrier, and lack of appropriate educational packages in this area makes progress impossible. This is especially true in Iran and specifically for the field of insurance.

In this book, with the purpose of familiarizing Iranian students with insurance texts in English and increasing their knowledge in this area, we have tried to include wide varieties of passages from latest books in Principles of Insurance, Cargo and Marine Insurance, Fire Insurance, Motor Insurance, Engineering Insurance, Reinsurance, Risk Management, and Insurance Law.

We hope that the present book can be beneficial for students in insurance and welcome any suggestions or criticisms regarding this book.
